- What is a hold up house of cards? A house of cards is a fragile structure built on a shaky foundation. In the context of a nursing home, it refers to a system where a single point of failure can cause the entire structure to collapse. This often happens when a single staff member is responsible for a large number of residents, or when a single family member is the primary contact for a large number of residents. The collapse can occur when the staff member or family member is unavailable, or when the system is overwhelmed by a sudden increase in demand. To avoid this, it is important to have a backup plan in place, such as having multiple staff members responsible for each resident, or having a family member who is not the primary contact. Additionally, it is important to have a clear communication plan in place, so that everyone knows what to do in the event of an emergency.
