- Investors in index-linked regime bonds or gilts will gain returns on their investments in regime debt in line with the RPI value of inflation. And those with defined welfare (DB) or "final wage" pension schemes are presently invested in these gilts to the amount of £470bn. Estimates by members of the Association of British Insurers (ABI) suggest that implementing the proposed changes in 2025 could go further than anticipated by up to £122bn by reducing the economic value of index-linked gilts. Even if the up-to-the-minute proposed changes in 2030 would alone reduce the value to £96bn, they count on. Contingent on their maturity and the timing of the change, individual DB pension holders may fall back on a reduction of 4-9 per cent of their total lifetime pension income, the Pensions and Lifetime Savings Association (PLSA) has warned.
